How do I prove and advertise the excellent performance of our waste and recycling business?

How do I know a waste management organisation can deliver the recycling rates they claim?

How can I prove to stakeholders that our waste and recycling service providers are genuinely reducing the impact of our waste?

Benefits for Business

“We are proud of being the first company to obtain a Green Compass Certificate in 2011 and in the nine years since then we have seen increasing customer interest in the quality of the data we provide.

Our local authority is now specifying certificated PAS 402 in their tenders which is recognition of the value of PAS 402. We know that PAS 402 has helped us identify and implement better ways of working.”

“We are finding an increasing acknowledgement of the Green Compass Certificate. We are seeing more and more PQQ's which require validated PAS 402.

We have benefitted internally from changes to our data reporting which has helped with Quarterly Returns – life is now much easier for the data manager.”

PAS 402 Inspection- How it Works

Supporting the Waste Tracker Project

Excellent waste data tracking and external verification of waste stream data reconciliation at site level means that customers of Green Compass members know exactly how their waste streams are being recycled, and in what quantities.

Connecting the Dots

GREEN

Giving Waste Direction

CWMPAWD

Cyfeirio Gwastraff

As far as we know there is no other standard that requires incoming waste streams to be matched to outgoing waste streams so directly.

The quarterly returns to the various environmental agencies do not require this level of information and waste transfer and consignment notes alone would not provide this level of tracking.

Supporting the Packaging Extended Producer Responsibility framework

Supporting the Circular Economy

Creating an effective circular economy requires systems thinking, liaising with each other to develop trusting business relationships and finding the mutual improvement opportunities.

This is not a 'lovely idea' but a critical necessity to shift into a different economic gear.

The waste sector is pivotal in our ambition to have zero waste.

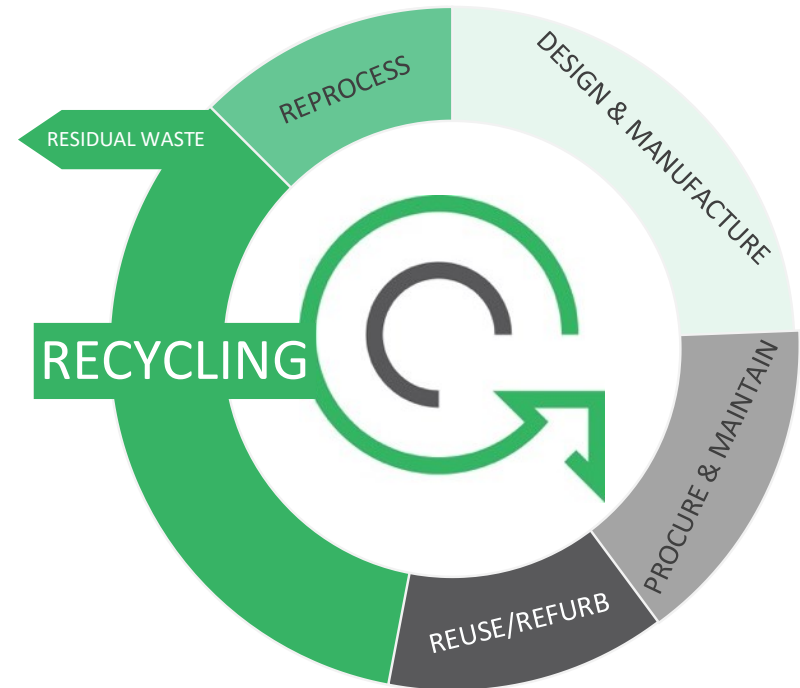

PAS 402 is here to support the waste management sector in its endeavours at the heart of the circular economy, and shine a light on those companies in the supply chain making a significant difference to the quality of recyclate and waste tracking.

The Big Picture

- Net Zero – waste carbon hierarchy
- Waste & Resources Strategy
- Circular Economy
- Waste Tracking Project
- National Materials Data Hub
- Quality – amendment to PAS 402 to extend to quality of outgoing waste streams
- SEPA/EA/NRW/NIEA emphasis on Supply Chain auditing
- Future Regulation – Ideal standard for self-regulation in the Waste & Recovery Sector
